KIOTI Announces new 4 Year Full Fleet Warranty

KIOTI Tractor, a Division of Daedong USA, Inc., announced on 1-22-08 at their North American Dealer Meeting, the launch of their new 4-Year Full-Fleet Warranty. While KIOTI has had a 4-year warranty in place since February 15, 2006, this original warranty was geared towards tractors purchased for non-commercial use only, covering all parts and labor costs for drive line and engine component failures that occurred due to defective materials or workmanship within the first 48 months of ownership.

The new KIOTI warranty unveiled today has been enhanced to cover owners who use their KIOTI tractor/s for commercial purposes as well. The previous warranty covered the engine and driveline components for up to 36 months or 2,000 hours of commercial use. The new 4-Year Full-Fleet Warranty extends commercial use coverage to 48 months and eliminates all hourly usage ceilings for coverage eligibility within the first four years. By removing the maximum hours covered by the warranty, all those who purchase a KIOTI tractor will have few worries about unexpected repair costs, regardless of the tractors use, during the first four years of ownership.

The announcement of this new warranty demonstrates KIOTI's continued commitment to providing industry leading services to current and future owners of their equipment. It also symbolizes the faith the company has in the manufacturing of KIOTI products. "We are committed to our customers and strongly believe in the reliability of our tractors," says Michael McChargue, Product Support Manager for KIOTI. "All major components of each tractor are manufactured by KIOTI, which allows us to maintain the quality control standards that make it possible for us to continue to provide industry leading warranties to our customers."
